Community of Respect

A Unique Cross-cultural Communication Professional Development Program – A diversity training program aimed to enhance cross-cultural communication in the workplace.

What is Community of Respect?

Community of Respect is an award-winning program that has been recognized by the National League of Cities as a program that has had a notable impact in the community. Community of Respect helps American inter-ethnic and international communities understand their interactions with each other. It focuses on how other cultures (within the U.S. and internationally) process information, create relationships, and communicate. It prepares individuals from a wide range of professions to understand how to best work with people from other cultures and/or countries. The program has also helped Texas A&M University and the surrounding community to become a more embracing and inclusive environment for diversity reflected in our faculty, students and employees.

Providing Training for:
- Universities
- Community Colleges
- School Districts
- City Governments
- Police Departments
- Fire Departments
- Chambers of Commerce
- Hospitals
- Corporate Businesses

We are willing to travel to provide onsite training seminars and workshops.

Call to negotiate your personal seminar needs.

Please contact Linda Edwards at:
Texas A&M University
MS 1245
College Station, TX 77843
Telephone: 979.862.6700
Fax: 979.862.6705
Email: l-edwards@tamu.edu
Website: http://bcsrespect.tamu.edu/
Staff is available at the number above to respond to questions regarding registration, technical support, advising, counseling or by email.

We Offer Two Different Programs:

Community of Respect Seminars

- Length: 2-8 hours
- Max. Trainees: Up to 50 people
- Cost: $50 per person with minimum of 20 attendees.
- Program Features: Modules I, II, III
- When: As requested
  *We can provide on-site training. Price is negotiable, dependent on time and numbers of attendees.

Community of Respect Train-the-Trainer Workshops

- Length: Two 8 hour days
- Max. Trainees: 15 people
- Cost: $575 per person
- Program Features: Training manual, two textbooks, a host of training supplements to print and use, access to survey system, personal consultations, Facebook for additional materials, trainer certificate, and breakfast and lunch both days
- When: Dates listed on website and per request for on-site location

Applicants who find they cannot attend after registering, should notify the organizers at least 10 days in advance for a full refund; Roll-over registration is provided if the timing is after the ten-day limit.